DEMO WEEK

Arise

Start the day on purpose, not by accident.

A wake-up alarm with a companion who asks how you feel, gives you words for that mood, and tells you what to wear.

Uche Azuike · Nuuch Systems · Qubators AI Foundry 2.0, Cohort 2 · 12 October 2026

THE PROBLEM

The first minutes of the day happen by accident, and they set the mood for the rest of it.

6:00

The alarm goes off

You're half awake and reach for the phone.

6:02

Whatever is on the screen

News, messages, social media, your to-do list. Nobody chose it.

All day

The tone is already set

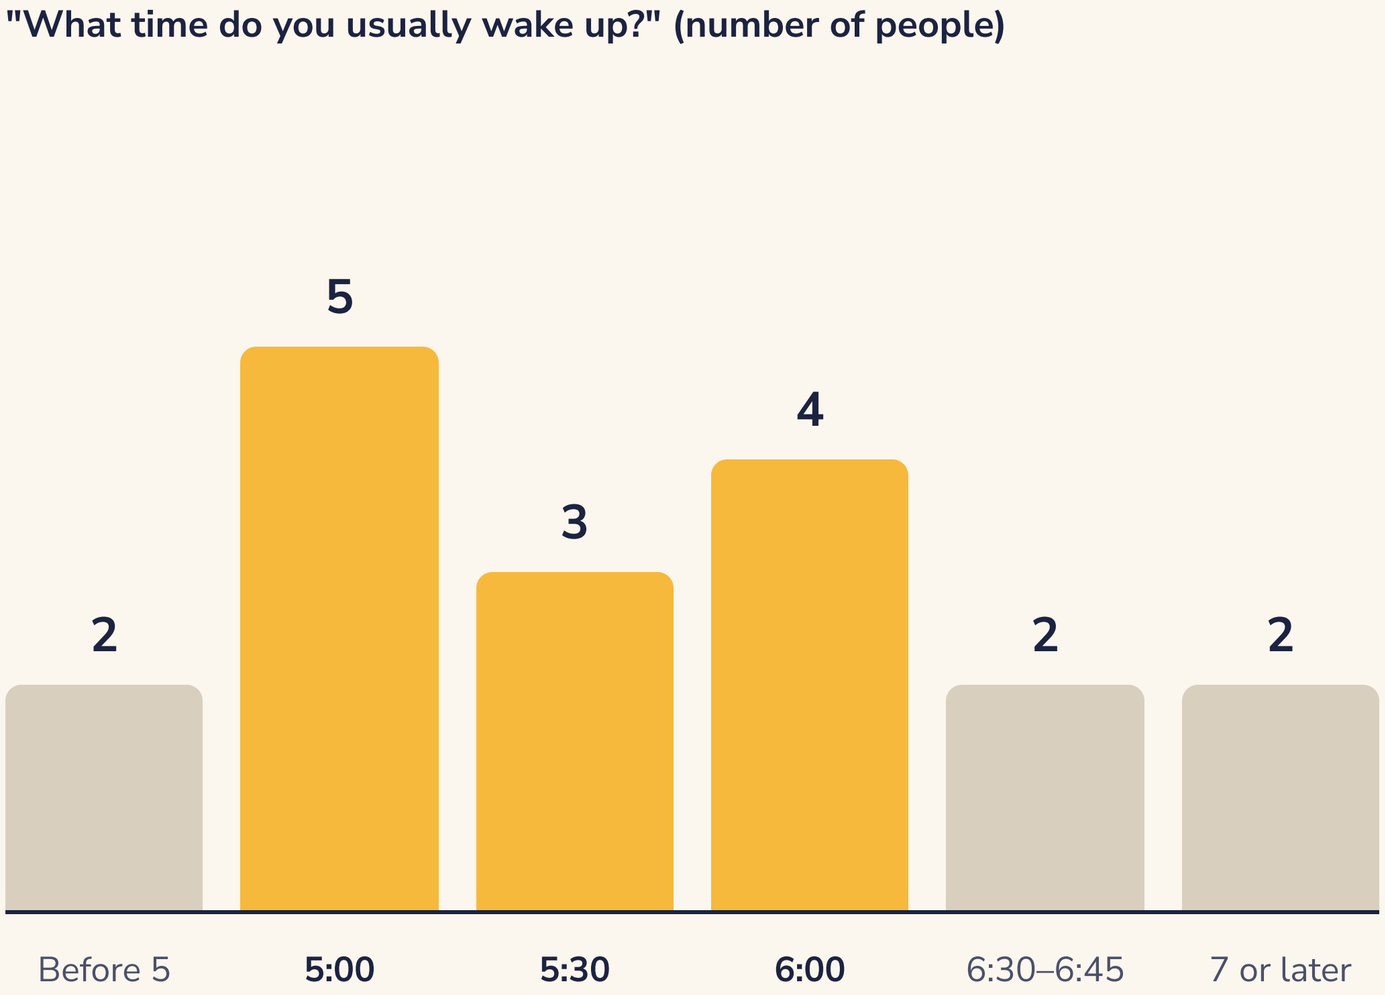

Stressed, rushed, or wearing the wrong coat in the rain.

EVIDENCE · MY SURVEY

I asked 18 people about their mornings.

13 of 18

wake between 5:00 and 6:30 am. That early window is exactly when Arise rings.

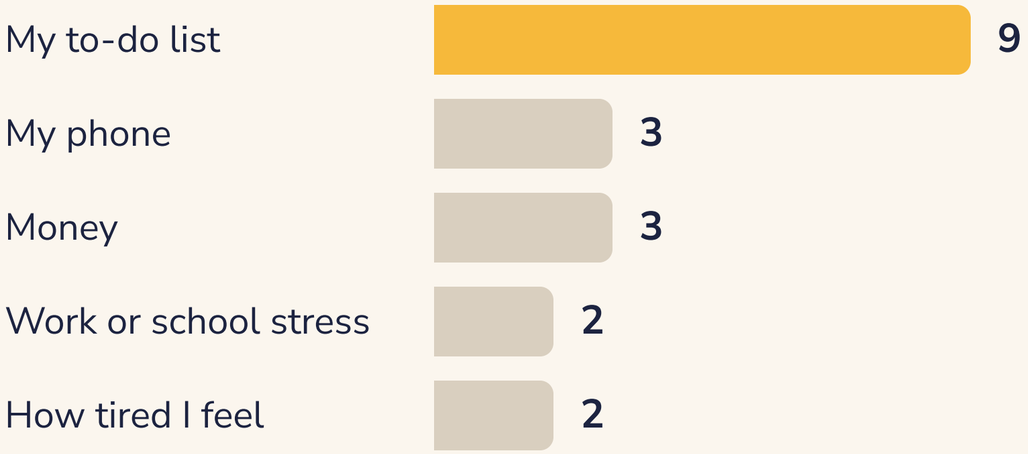

Source: "Your Mornings" survey, 18 responses, 22–27 September 2026. The survey did not mention Arise. Gold bars = 5:00 to 6:00 answers.

EVIDENCE · MY SURVEY

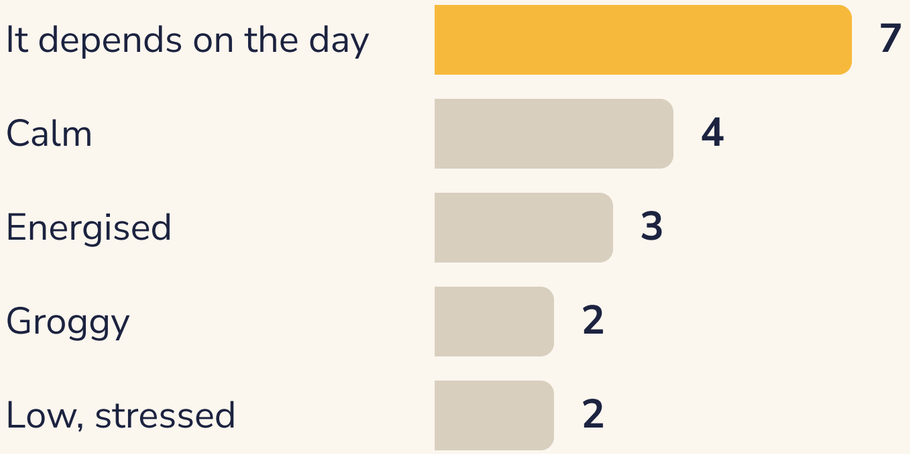

People wake up with a to-do list, and their mood changes day to day.

"What's on your mind in the first few minutes?"

→ Arise adds a one-line intention and daytime reminders.

"How do you usually feel when you wake up?"

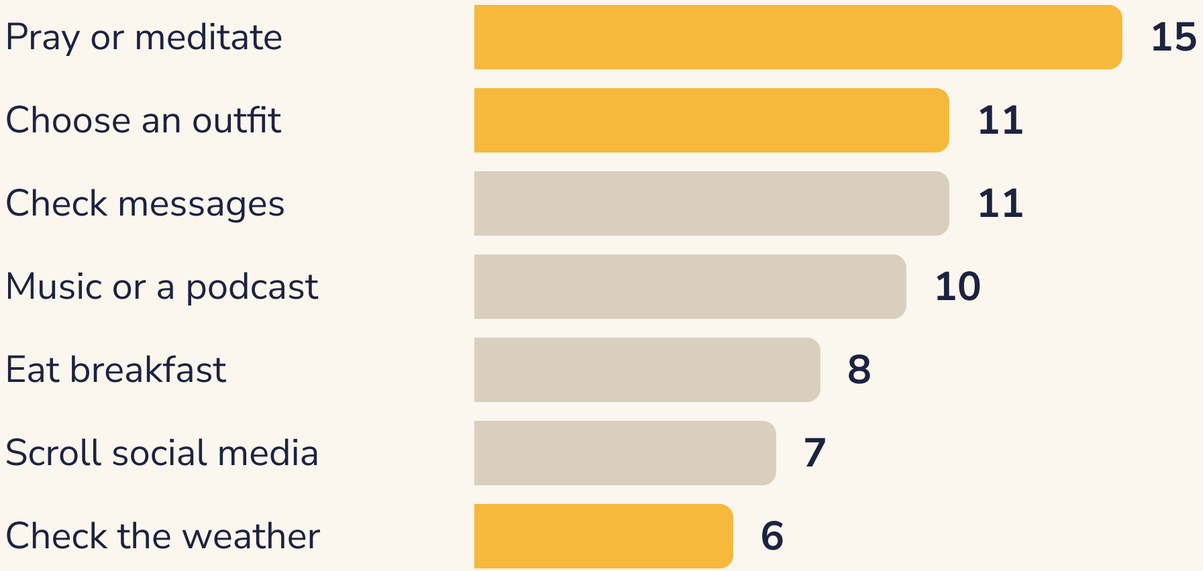

→ Arise asks how you feel every single morning.

Source: "Your Mornings" survey, 18 responses. Left question allowed more than one answer.

EVIDENCE · MY SURVEY

Every feature answers a real habit.

"Before you leave the house, what do you usually do?"

What Arise gives them

Outfit + weather → day brief

Live weather, what to wear, and whether to take an umbrella.

Pray or meditate → faith quote

A quote from your own faith each day, in Arise Plus.

11 of 18 tried affirmations

A pep talk for today's mood. 10 of 18 have tried a new alarm app.

Source: "Your Mornings" survey, 18 responses; more than one answer allowed. Gold bars = habits Arise supports directly.

EVIDENCE · WHY ROUTINES STOP

When a morning routine failed, people told me why. Each reason became a design rule.

"It got repetitive"

3

Rule: the words change every day

Never the same pep talk twice in a row.

"I kept forgetting"

2

Rule: the alarm starts it

You can't forget a routine that wakes you up.

"Lost motivation" or "too much time"

3

Rule: two minutes or less

One tap for your mood. Typing is optional.

Source: "Your Mornings" survey, 18 responses. On the good side, 8 of 18 said they noticed a difference when a routine stuck.

SOLUTION DESIGN

One routine, from the alarm to bedtime.

The morning · under two minutes

Alarm rings
Even locked or restarted

→

Companion greets you
A face you chose

→

Mood in one tap
Five smiley faces

→

Pep talk
For that mood, read aloud

→

Day brief
Weather, outfit, umbrella

The rest of the day

Today's intention

→

Reminders

→

Evening check-in

→

History

SOLUTION · REAL SCREENS

The morning check-in, one tap at a time.

Your companion greets you by name. One tap tells Arise how you feel, and it saves straight away. Then you get words for that mood, with a button to hear them read aloud.

Home. Your companion and your next alarm.

Mood. Five smiley faces, one tap.

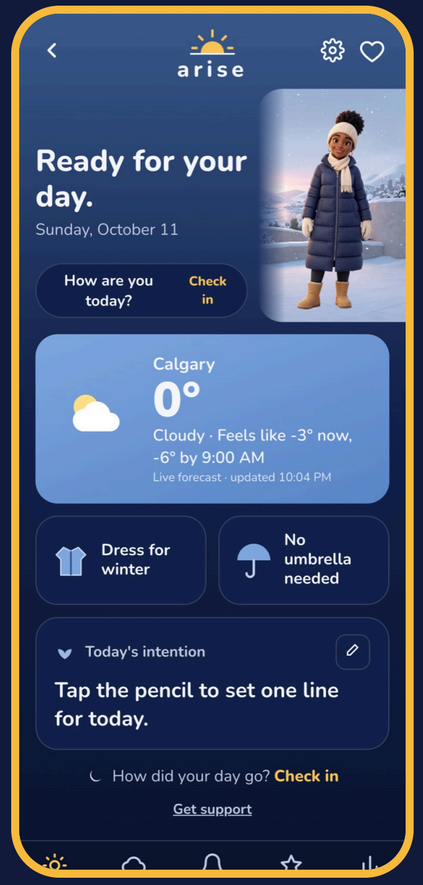

Pep talk. Words for that mood.

Screenshots of the live Arise app at phone size, taken 11 October 2026. The Android APK runs the same journey in the live demo.

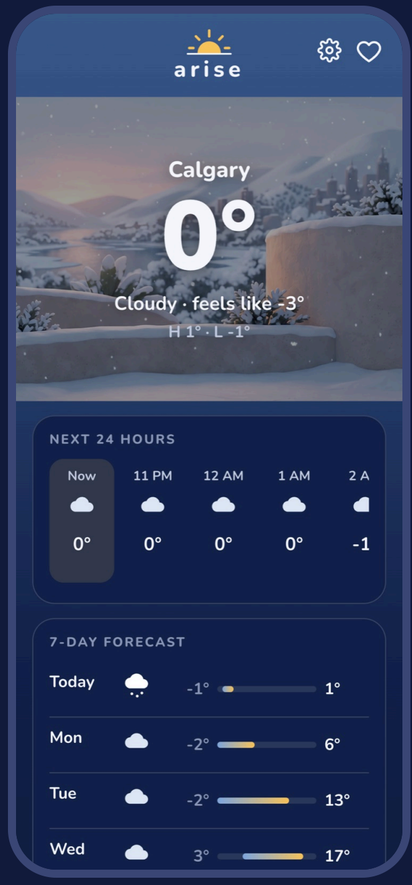

SOLUTION · REAL SCREENS

It knows it's 0° in Calgary, so the companion wears a winter coat.

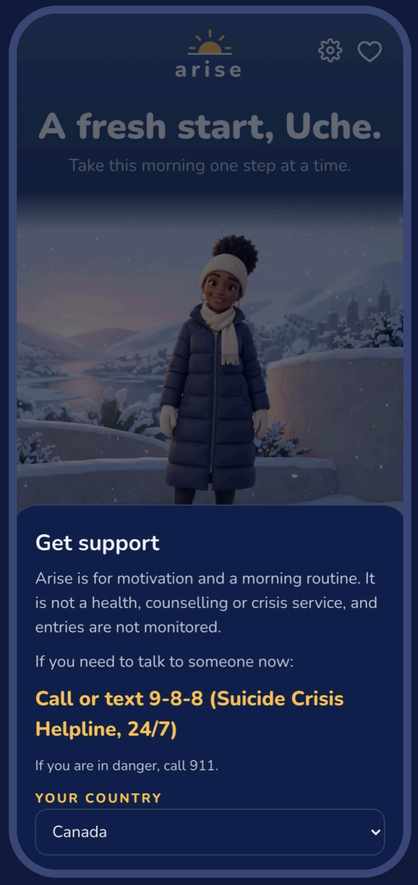

The day brief turns live weather into plain advice: what to wear and whether you need an umbrella. Help is always one tap away.

Day brief. Dress for winter, no umbrella.

Weather. Next 24 hours and 7 days.

Get support. The help line for your country.

Screenshots of the live Arise app, 11 October 2026, 10:04 pm. Weather from Open-Meteo, live.

WORKING APP · PROOF

I tested the alarm first, before building anything else.

iPhone 14 Pro Max · iOS 26.7 · 30 Sep

Phone locked, app closed	Passed
After a restart	Passed
Airplane mode, no network	Passed
Do Not Disturb on	Passed

Samsung A04e · Android 14 · 8 Oct

Passed

Rang on the minute using Android's alarm clock, opened the full-screen alarm with "I'm up" and Snooze, then set itself for the next day.

Source: docs/TECHNICAL-NOTES.md, alarm spike test report, in the GitHub repo. Why first: one survey answer to "a bad morning" was "the alarm didn't ring".

LIVE DEMO

The Android APK, on my Samsung.

1. Set a real alarm for one minute from now

2. Tap my mood and get my pep talk

3. The alarm rings: "I'm up" or Snooze

4. Weather, what to wear, and History

HOW IT'S BUILT

Your feelings stay on your phone. The server only holds what it must.

On your phone

Android APK (React Native, Kotlin alarm). iPhone (Apple AlarmKit). Installable web app.

Moods, notes, history and reminders are stored here only.

Supabase server

Sign-in by email link. Whether you pay for Plus. A daily cap of 300 AI calls.

The AI key lives here, never in the app.

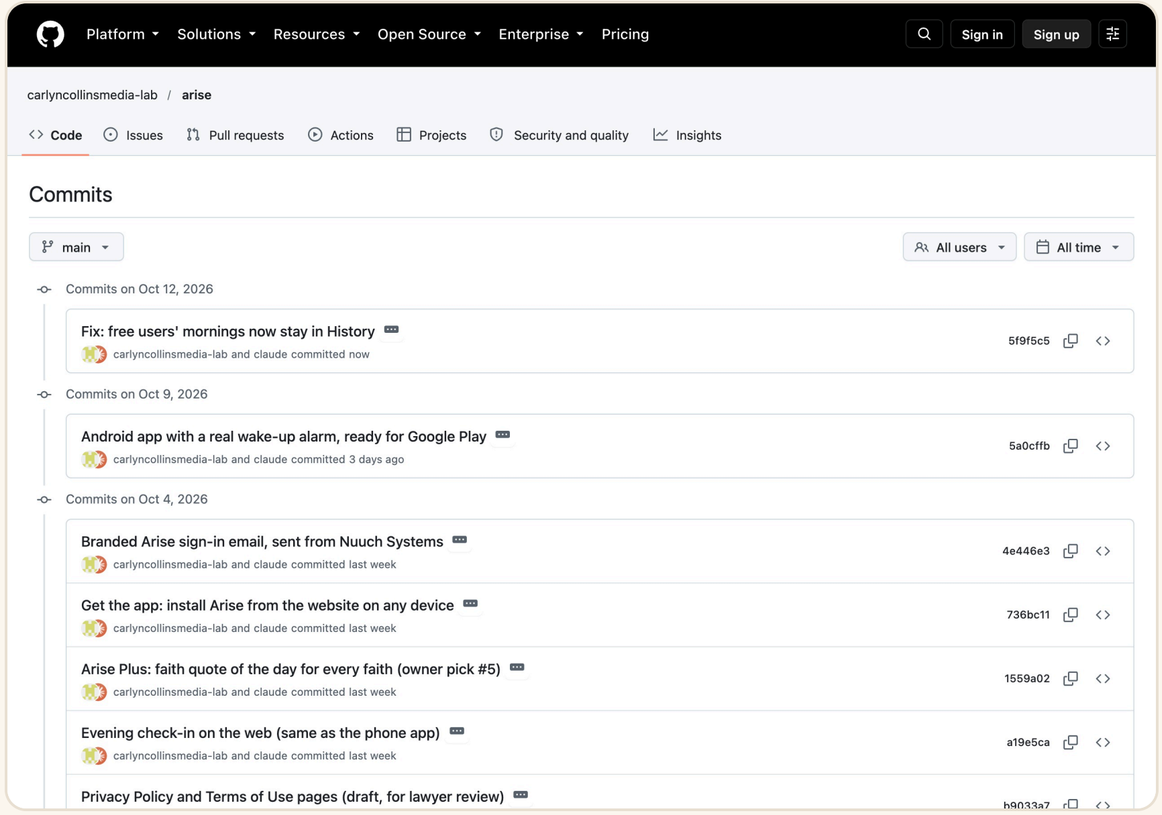

Services

Claude writes pep talks. Stripe takes payments. Open-Meteo gives weather. Email from hello@nuuchsystems.com.

Built with Claude Code from my PRD (the product bible). Hosting: Netlify. Code: github.com/carlyncollinsmedia-lab/arise

PROOF · BUILT AND TESTED STEP BY STEP

67 commits on GitHub, one for every working step.

Tests with real results

- Claude pep talk tested live, 30 Sep: answered in 6.0 and 8.2 seconds
- Free pep talk checked 11 Oct: 1.4 seconds
- Stripe test payment worked: subscription active until 4 Nov
- 10 of 10 database tables locked so people see only their own rows
- Bug found and fixed 11 Oct while making these slides

Commits by day: 18 Sep 1 · 26 Sep 14 · 30 Sep 20 · 3 Oct 30 · 8 Oct 1 · 11 Oct 1. Test log: docs/integration-test-log.md.

SAFETY AND PRIVACY

A mood app will one day hear something serious. Arise is ready for it.

Honest from day one

Setup says Arise is for motivation. It is not therapy or a crisis service.

Crisis words get a person

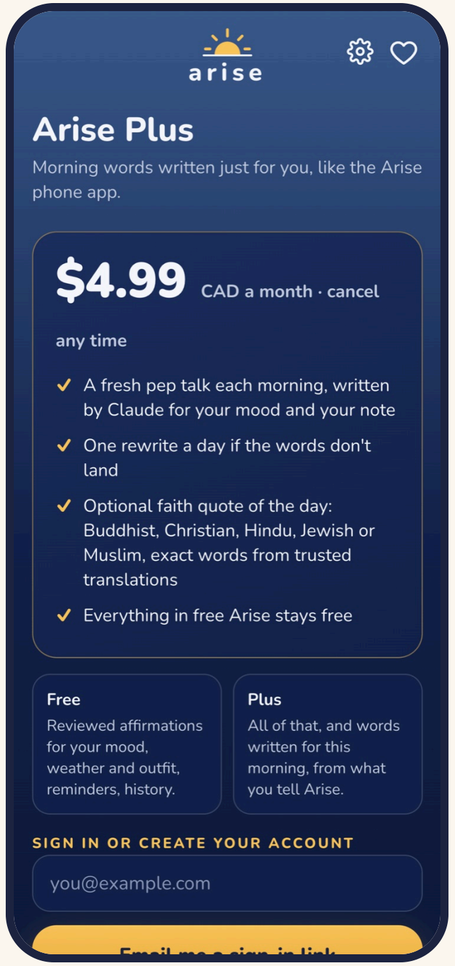

Arise skips the pep talk and shows a calm message with a help line. Lines for 15 countries.

The AI never makes up a number

Phone numbers come from a checked list, and a note can't change what the AI may say.

Private by default

Feelings stay on your phone. Privacy policy and terms are written, ready for a lawyer's review.

BUSINESS MODEL

Free to start. Arise Plus pays for the AI.

Free

Alarm, mood check-in, reviewed pep talks, weather and outfit, reminders, history.

Plus · $4.99 CAD a month

A pep talk written by Claude each morning, one rewrite a day, and a faith quote for your own faith.

Payments run through Stripe in test mode. My test purchase created a real subscription record, active until 4 November.

Cost control: short AI answers, two AI calls per Plus member a day, and a cap of 300 AI calls a day for the whole app.

ROADMAP

Where Arise goes next, phase by phase.

PHASE 1 · DONE

Android APK
Real alarm, signed and ready for Google Play

iPhone alarm tested
Passed all 4 tests

Live web app
Installs on any phone or computer

Arise Plus
Payments working in test mode

PHASE 2 · NEXT

Google Play and App Store
12 testers for 14 days, then iPhone, with real payments

Rhapsody of Realities
Today's devotional for Christian users in Plus. I'll ask Christ Embassy (LoveWorld) for permission; until then, a button opens the official Rhapsody app.

Lock-screen widget
Today's words and weather without opening the app

PHASE 3 · PLUS GROWS

Pep talks in your language
The AI speaks your morning words in languages like Igbo, Yoruba, Hausa or French

A companion that talks
A real voice greets you, plus more voices and companions

Send a morning
Share today's encouragement with a friend

Later: choose your pep-talk tone (gentle, practical or uplifting) · a calendar-aware day brief · more faiths in the quote library

Thank you.

Questions?

Android APK: github.com/carlyncollinsmedia-lab/arise/releases

Try it on the web: arise-morning.netlify.app

Code: github.com/carlyncollinsmedia-lab/arise

What I learned: the AI builds exactly what you describe, so clear planning is the real work. Test the riskiest part first.

Uche Azuike · Nuuch Systems · hello@nuuchsystems.com

